Call For Student Volunteers

STUDENT VOLUNTEER PROGRAM

Participating as a Student Volunteer is a great opportunity to learn about the most important developments in the HPC field. Undergraduate and graduate students are encouraged to apply as student volunteers to help run the conference.

Benefits

By becoming a student volunteer at ISC'09 you will receive the following benefits:

- Registration to the conference; including technical sessions and keynote addresses
- Access to the exhibit floor
- Meals during conference hours
- Hotel accommodations at one of the conference hotels (out-of-town volunteers only)
- Conference proceedings
- Admission to special events on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings
- ISC'09 Shirt.

Requirements and Responsibilities

- Student volunteers must be enrolled in a Ph.D., Masters, or full-time undergraduate program at the time of the conference.
- Student volunteers will be asked to work a minimum of around 25 hours before and during the conference (from June 19 until June 26, 2009).
- Duties during the conference (June 23-26, 2009) will include such tasks as monitoring entrance to sessions, assisting with registration, running microphones to audience members for questions, checking badges for entry to events and technical support to ISCnet Network Team and other similar tasks.
- Duties before the conference (June 19- 22, 2009) will include such tasks as technical support to ISCnet Network Team, arranging the conference area and other similar tasks.
- Student volunteers are responsible for their travel expenses. In some cases, your school may be able to provide assistance.
